1. In early September 1953, large furnace chambers (Ofenschuesse) were transported from East Germany to Russia. These furnace sections are reportedly designed for cement works in Russia. The furnace units vary from 3.40 to 6.60 meters in length and are 3.75 meters in diameter and weigh from 7.7 to 21 tons per unit.

2. These units were manufactured by Ernst Thaelmann, Magdeburg/Buckau, and were consigned to C. Hartwig S.A. in Stettin for further transport to W/O Tekhnopromimport, Moscow.
